Call for Donations

My name is Lesley Marino. I am a freelance documentary photographer based in Toronto. I am volunteering my time and talents to a great organization called the Ryan's Well Foundation. Ryan's Well is a non-profit organization that builds wells, educates on water conservation and scarcity, and raises awareness and funds to help provide clean water and related services to people in Africa and other areas of the developing world.

In late February 2010, I will be travelling to Uganda with Ryan's Well to document their water and sanitation projects; my goal is to create compassionate, empowering photographs that will be used by Ryan's Well to educate, motivate and raise awareness of the important work they do in developing countries. I plan to blog about my experiences while I am there and to exhibit my work later in 2010.

I am calling for donations for a fundraising event I am hosting at the Tranzac on December 10 to raise money to offset my travel costs. I am requesting donations for a silent auction and for raffle prizes. This is a great opportunity to promote yourself or your business and support the promotion of the Ryan's Well Foundation. I will also acknowledge your support by listing you or your business on my blog.
